

ABSTRACT

In a semiconductor device having a cobalt silicide film, at least nickel or iron is contained in the cobalt silicide film for preventing the rise of resistance incidental to thinning of the film.